

BING FAITHFUL'S CLASSIC "One Dollar Challenge" (a.k.a. "I'll give you a dollar if you...")

This is a personal game, meaning no one knows you are playing it, except you.
Recommendation: Establish the game very early in the evening.

1. You single a person out and softly – very quietly – challenge that person to do a pretty ridiculous task for a dollar. (For example: "I'll give you a dollar if you take those 8 or 9 sticks of celery and put them in your mouth, hold them there - without biting them – for 17 minutes and 43 seconds."
 - a. If that person says "No" or "That is the worst bet ever!" or "Why would I do that?" you respond by increasing the time s/he has to hold the celery in her/his mouth or by adding gooey dip to each celery stick or anything at all that is more ridiculous than the first challenge. And then...
 - b. If that person says, "OK!" and does that challenge, you give them a dollar and...
2. Wait Patiently: Enjoy a Bing Faithful's Merry Dirty Martini (Page 5 of Bing Faithful's Very Merry Nondenominational Holiday Recipes Booklet on the Activities page of the website www.BingFaithful.com)
3. Let the conversation pass and give that person time to forget about the game
4. Then Softly – when it is long forgotten – very quietly, bring it back again with something equally ridiculous – "I'll give you a dollar to finish eating your entire hamburger without using your hands."
5. Repeat 1a or 1b as needed, as well as 2-3
6. Repeat 1a or 1b as needed, as well as 2-3
7. Repeat 1a or 1b as needed, as well as 2-3
8. Repeat 1a or 1b as needed, as well as 2-3

A FEW NONDENOMINATIONAL EXAMPLES (TO HELP GET YOUR CHESTNUTS POPPIN'):

"I'll give you a dollar if you take your forefinger and thumb and stick them in that broccoli casserole and swirl them around in a tiny circle that never exceeds 2 inches in diameter for 22 & a half hours and another 18 minutes."

"I'll give you a dollar if you give that person over there (preferably a stranger) the softest hug you've ever given to anyone... ever... and hold that hug... and you never say anything about it or answer any questions and you hug them... ever so softly... and hold that hug... ever so, so, so softly... for 10 minutes, following them around, wherever they go, like a soft hug force field, for 10 minutes... or 11 minutes."

*"I'll give you a dollar if put a handful of ice in your mouth, yell with a mouth full of ice, spit the ice back in your hand and very loudly proclaim
'Oh my, good sir! It appears someone has frozen the water that I just had in my mouth!'"*

Then you faint dramatically and lay, completely limp on the ground until for 42 minutes or until you forcefully soil yourself."

LIKE A NONDENOMINATIONAL HOLIDAY SAPLING, THIS TOO SHOULD GROW....

2 Person "One Dollar Challenge"

This may turn into a two person a game, going back and forth like an elf on a ping-pong table... or it may not... you can't force it! (Seriously.)

Group "One Dollar Challenge"

Similarly, this may turn into a group game, where everyone plays... or it may not... you can't force.

NOTES FROM BING FAITHFUL:

- I've learned through my very merry travels, that this game works out best when you do not tell anyone what you are doing and you allow them to organically play along with you.
- Do NOT smile when you are making challenges. That just looks weird & creepy.
- WARNING:
Some people are going to be amused by this but not play.
Some people are going to be amused and play along with you.
Some people are not are going to be amused and will not play along with you.
And do you do it again?!?
Well, that is a different game altogether.
